

I am an eighth grader that goes to school everyday. Not only because the law says I have to, but because I also want to. School is a place that allows me to have good friends, I get out of the house everyday, and all of the activities are good for children my age.

All people need friends, and for kids most of them are here at school. Friends who go through school together, often grow up and be friends for quite some time even after they leave school. This can only happen if they have kept in touch, but why should they not? At my school, most of the student body is friends with each other or at least know each other. The more friends one may have just adds to the excitement of coming to school.

School is in session from 8:00 A.M until 3:00 P.M for a combining total of seven hours, thus concluding, we are away from home for seven hours! We do not have to worry about little brothers or sisters, or washing any dishes, or about getting bored. Being at home all the time bores me especially during summer vacation, because it is not fun being away from school for that long. I do not mind spending most of my time at school because I enjoy it.

Not wanting to be bored at home goes with another reason as to why I like going to school. The activities are fun. In gym we play and seeing that we are a bit too old for recess, we need that time to release energy. Sporting events and contests all make going to school worth while. It is nice to be apart of an organization or club that one can be proud to be in because, one should feel as though they are unique and special.

With all of those reasons said, I enjoy going to school the most be-
